

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Plaintiff,

vs.

No. 20-CR-267 JP

ERIC BELDING, Defendant.

DEFENDANT ERIC BELDING'S REPLY TO THE GOVERNMENT'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANT'S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR RELEASE PENDING SENTENCING

COMES NOW, Defendant Eric Belding, by and through his counsel of record, Erlinda O. Johnson, Esq., and hereby respectfully submits the following reply to the government's response to defendant's emergency motion, pursuant to the provisions of 18 U.S.C. § 3145(c), for release pending sentencing:

1. In his emergency motion, Mr. Belding advanced multiple arguments based on information that supports his release pending sentencing and self-surrender should the court authorize release.
2. The Government's response does not take into consideration the extreme high risks Mr. Belding faces should he contract COVID-19. As detailed in Mr. Belding's emergency motion, as a cardiac patient, he faces severe complications from COVID-19.
3. Indeed, the status as high-risk individual and the current medical crisis that will inevitably put all detainees at risk has been considered by numerous courts throughout the country. As put succinctly by one district court judge, “[b]y now it almost goes without saying that we should not be adding to the prison population during the COVID-19 pandemic if it can be avoided.” United States v Garlock, No. 18-CR-00418-VC-1, 2020 WL 1439980, at *1 (N.D.

Cal. Mar. 25, 2020). Another court specifically based its decision on the fact that release protects not just the defendant, but the community. See United States v. Jaffee, No. 19-cr-88 (D.D.C. Mar. 26, 2020) (releasing defendant with criminal history in gun and drug case, citing “palpable” risk of spread in jail and “real” risk of “overburdening the jail’s healthcare resources”; “the Court is . . . convinced that incarcerating the defendant while the current COVID-19 crisis continues to expand poses a greater risk to community safety than posed by Defendant’s release to home confinement”).¹

4. It is undisputed that Mr. Belding currently suffers from a cardiac condition and in fact was born with a heart defect. This condition places him at a higher risk of complications and even death, should he contract COVID-19.

5. In order to minimize his risk of death, this Court must allow for his release to the third party custody of his father, Dana Belding, with electronic monitoring, home confinement and reschedule Eric Belding's sentencing hearing to a date after the pandemic and national health crisis is under control.

6. The Cibola Correctional Center and any Bureau of Prisons facility is not a closed hermetic system: staff shuttle in and out of the facility around the clock. And any individuals – such as staff – can carry the virus for days without showing any symptoms. Regardless of well-intentioned screening efforts, the virus will make its way into the facility, and in fact it is in all likelihood already there. The virus has already found its way into the Santa Fe County Adult Detention Center, a federal and state facility.² It is only a matter of time before cases begin surfacing at the Cibola Correctional Center.

7. To sentence Mr. Belding expeditiously and ship him off to the Bureau of Prisons does not address his high risk of complications or even death from COVID-19 should Mr. Belding be infected. The Bureau of Prisons is even more dangerous for Mr. Belding.

8. As of April 14, 2020, 446 federal inmates in Bureau of Prisons (BOP) facilities have tested positive for COVID-19 and 14 have died.³ To sentence Mr. Belding on April 29, 2020, to a term in the BOP could potentially end up in a death sentence as COVID-19 appears to be rapidly spreading within the BOP. Most alarmingly is that fact that COVID-19 cases at one of the BOP medical facilities have surged dramatically.⁴ This reality poses a great risk for Eric Belding as he would likely be designated to a medical facility given his medical condition.

9. The Supreme Court has held that exposure to environmental threats to an incarcerated person's physical wellbeing, where exposure is preventable, can constitute a violation of the Eighth Amendment's prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment. See Helling v. McKinney, 509 U.S. 25, 28 (1993)

10. In order to safeguard Mr. Belding's life and avoid a violation to his Eighth Amendment rights, he begs the Court to vacate the April 29, 2020, sentencing hearing and authorize his release pending a future sentencing hearing.

Wherefore, for the foregoing reasons and the reasons set forth in Mr. Belding's emergency motion for release, Mr. Belding respectfully moves this Honorable Court for an order vacating the April 29, 2020, sentencing hearing and allowing release pending sentencing.

Respectfully submitted,
